STAMP OF DISAPPROVAL

Some of the hidden designs in your article "A Collector's Guide to Stamps Secretly Designed for Fun and Profit" (MAD #281) are impossible. For instance, the stamp depicting the White House shows Oliver North shredding documents. This stamp was issued on May 22, 1986, a good six months before the Iran-Contra affair was discovered. How do you explain that?

Joseph Levy
Wauwatosa, WI

Simple! George Bush told us he heard it from Manuel Noriega while on his way to Ed Meese's office to discuss the Wedtech deal. Go figure!—Ed.

VEEKO THIS!

On the MAD subscription stamp in the article "MAD Opens a Typical Magazine Sweepstakes Package" (issue MAD #279), it announced MAD as the winner of the VEEKO award. Congratulations! While I always knew you were Vain, Excruciatingly Egotistical, Kinky & Odd, now you've got the award to prove it!

Charlie Tillett
Natick, MA

MAD publisher William Gaines receives the coveted VEEKO award from VEEKO Chairman Tom Fitzsimmons at last year's wild annual VEEKO Harvest Moon Ball.

"MAD'S READER OPINION POLL"

In "MAD's Reader Opinion Poll Part II: Movies," writer J. Prete implied that Robocop was played by Peter Weir. Peter Weir is a renowned director (Witness, The Year of Living Dangerously). Robocop was played by Peter Weller. Please, if you're going to make fun of someone, get his name right! PS: what kind of name is Prete?

Amanda Weeden
New York, NY

Prete is Italian for "Weir." Go figure!—Ed.

More Weir/Weller watchers include:

Kerry Douglas, Philadelphia, PA; Liam Sullivan, Gainesville, FL; Eric McIntosh, Southgate, KY; Josh Beckerman, Jamaica, NY; Rich Erlich, Oxford, OH.

In question number three of your movie reader opinion poll, you say that you can't understand Arnold Schwarzenegger's accent in Predator. I have seen Predator three times in a row, and his accent is perfectly understandable.

M. Kartozian
Oakland, CA

If his accent is so clear, then why did you have to see the movie three times before you could understand it?—Ed.

MORON MAIL

Could you please do me a favor? Please print the name "Joe Coldwater" on a page in your magazine. It's to settle a bet between my buddy and me.

Joe Coldwater
Aurora, IL

Sure, Joe, no problem! MAD is always happy to provide a fleeting blip of joy in an otherwise unfulfilled, empty, barren, small, insignificant, vapid life. Thanks for writing!—Ed.

EXPLAINING DAVE BERG

In MAD #281, we asked people for theories explaining why the fashions Dave Berg dresses his "Lighter Side" characters in sometimes seem out-of-date. Hoo Boy, did we get theories! Here's a sampling:

Let's face it... Dave Berg just gets off more by drawing scantily-clad female characters than the layered, garbage-bag look of today!

Brigitte Christopher
Montreal, Canada

Wrong, wrong, wrong! Dave loves the layered garbage look. In fact, most of his clothes have an easy peel-off twist tie! — Ed.

I think the enigma about Dave Berg's out-of-date style resembles closely the puzzle as to why MAD arrives about a half a year before the date on the cover says it should!

Jeff Mantei
Decatur, IL

Nope, nope, nope! The enigma is why Decatur, IL miserably lags six months behind the rest of the country! (Except for you of course, Jeff!) — Ed.

Dave Berg is not out-dated. He is ahead of his time. As a matter of fact, just as Annie Hall, Flashdance and Miami Vice all started their own fashion trends, so will "The Lighter Side." By next spring, the cover of GQ will feature a pipe-smoking Walter Matthau dressed in a wide-lapelled plaid shirt, flair-legged slacks that are three inches too short and thrift store loafers. The caption will read: "'Lighter Side' Fashion: Berg Takes a Bold Bite!"

Mr. Berg's truly visionary fashion sense is to be admired, not ridiculed. He is a genius and a trendsetter.

Dan Povenmire
Los Angeles, CA

Fa fa fa! Finally, the correct response! — Ed.

60 MORE MAD MINUTES

Lightning may not strike twice, but bad taste does! Last spring, CBS's 60 Minutes repeated its segment on MAD. Here's more feedback:

Before seeing you on 60 Minutes last week I had forgotten just how MAD you are! I'm a 65-year-old grandmother with a 35-year-old "executive type" C.P.A. son. He has gotten "too big for his britches" and is a corporate yuppie! Enclosed is a check. Please send him your next eight issues and help me bring him back down to your level and mine: off-the-wall, unpretentious and loving it!

Betty Stacy
Irvine, CA

Thanks for the cash! — Ed.

Some 30 years ago while in my teens, I read your magazine quite religiously. As I grew older and more mature (?) I thought your mag to be trashy and with little redeeming value. My parents thought me a bit nuts. Last night I caught the repeat segment on 60 Minutes and it prompted me to buy your latest issue. At the tender age of 42 I find that little has changed. Your magazine is still trashy and with little redeeming value. Now my wife and four kids think I am a bit nuts. Attached please find my check for a subscription. Send all issues in a plain brown wrapper. If my kids beat me to the mailbox I'll never see it!

Mike Meulemans
Honolulu, HI

I saw you on 60 Minutes last night and I found out you're not as moronic as I thought.

Shaun Corrigan
Brookfield, WI

You know, Shaun, two things get our goat: 1) lame, unclear moronic letters, and 2) goat rustlers! — Ed.

Saw you all on 60 Minutes. I'm glad I watched. I learned that the success of your magazine depends on the outrage and condemnation of parents. Consider me outraged and you condemned!

Love,
Mike Gaskill's mom

Condemned!? This isn't a letters page anymore... It's a WITCH HUNT!!! — Ed.

That jerk from Australia is back in town! No, not Jacko! (But an excellent guess!) We're talking about that other guy from down under who's understated and overrated (as opposed to Jacko, who's overstated and overrated!) Yup, Jacko is nothing more than a big Australian buffoon to most Americans and, for that matter, so is...

Crock, you can't use dynamite to fish in the ocean!

I'm not using dynamite! It's the fish using dynamite! I heard the sea life in the Hudson River was tough, but this is ridiculous! Bring me up there with you where I'll be safe!

And over there in the rowboat is Crock O'Dull Dummee in yet another attempt to show us his winning backward ways!

Winning? He makes me more nauseous than this rocky boat!

Ram his rowboat! Drown him! He has terminal naiveté! Put him out of his misery!

You're his girlfriend! Tell us, how is Crock O' Dull Dummee I different from Crock O' Dull Dummee II?

There's a big difference! In Crock O' Dull Dummee I, he starts out in Australia and travels to New York City! In Crock O' Dull Dummee II, he starts out in New York City and travels to Australia!!!

The amazing thing is with all that travel, the movie goes nowhere!

WRITER: DICK DEBARTOLO

I'm getting great shots of the Colombian drug kingpin killing a stool pigeon! It's too bad I'm here on assignment for the Colombian Chamber of Commerce brochure!

CLICK! CLICK! CLICK! CLICK!

I got another great shot! Unfortunately it's in the chest! I hope I'm a slow bleeder, so there's time to get this film developed and mailed to my ex-wife, Zoo, back home... Please God, let me find one of those "one hour" photo places!

BAM! BLAM! BANG!

Let me go, you creeps! I'm not getting into a car with strangers!

We're not strangers, we're guys who murdered your rotten ex-husband!

Oh! I never pass up a free ride from friends!

POT I BREAK FOR COKE

My name is Reako! I head a huge Colombian drug racket and I want those pictures your ex-husband mailed to you!

I swear to you, my ex-husband did not send me any pictures! Besides, with our divorce settlement, he would have only sent me half the pictures, anyway!

Why do you want the pictures?

Because they show me blowing someone's brains out!

And you don't want them to fall into the hands of the law?

Who worries about that? I want them for my photo Christmas card!

Did you get any pictures in the mail today?

Yes, but that's nothing! I also got a notice from Ed McMahon telling me I may already be a Million Dollar Winner!

I can't believe you've been in this city four years and you're still such a yokel! If you want to see the girl alive again, meet us in the subway!

Don't take her down there! She'll be killed for sure!

Your girl arrives on the next subway train.

With service these days, that could take weeks!

Give me the pictures now! I can't be seen! I'm wanted for robbery, drugs and murder!

Big deal. I sneaked down here without putting in a token!

Thanks for your help, mates! I could have handled that creep myself, but it might have meant having to change my expression!

Are you Crint East-Wood?

No, but I understand the confusion! He also writes, produces, and puts himself on the screen in any junk he feels like!

Oh— then you Sylvester Stal-lone!

Listen, mate, my girlfriend's being held captive and I'm looking for someone who is "road wise!"

You really mean "street smart," don't you?

No, "road wise"! I need someone to tell me how to get from New York City to Long Island on the expressway during rush hour—in under four hours!

That's impossible! You really are a yokel!

WHAT'S UP, DOC?

WELL, I PASSED THE RABBIT TEST.

Listen, guys, want to have some fun?

What's your idea of fun, old man?

Breaking into a plush estate and trashing the place!

Hey, count us in! You're raising our standards! Normally we trash middle class places! This is a chance to expand our horizons!

How did you get in?!? This estate is protected by the highest state-of-the-art security available!

Who knew??? I guess I ignored it!

Boy, sometimes being naive really pays off!

I'm taking the girl with me! And so you'll NEVER find us we're going to a place you'd never think to look. My home in Australia!

So this is your house in the Outback! Where's the bathroom?

Outback!

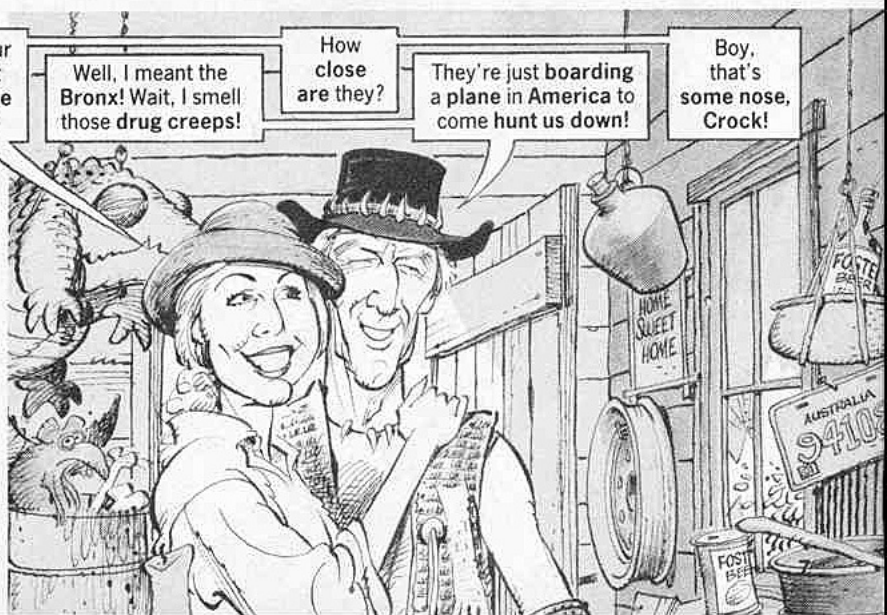

But you said your house was just like a townhouse in New York!

Well, I meant the Bronx! Wait, I smell those drug creeps!

How close are they?

They're just boarding a plane in America to come hunt us down!

Boy, that's some nose, Crock!

You kill the girl,
I'll kill Dummee!

Isn't it dumb to fly

MORE FAMOUS STORIES AS

ARTIST: BOB CLARKE

Once upon a time, a businessman named Al Capone, may he rest in peace, lived in Chicago. The Government passed a law making it a crime for a working stiff to relax with a bottle of beer or have a glass of wine with his supper. Mr. Capone, being a humanitarian, decided to do something about it. In the patriotic tradition of our forefathers who dumped a load of tea in the Boston harbor to protest another unjust law, Mr. Capone went into the brewery business so that the American public could satisfy their God-given right to get smashed!

This didn't sit too well with the Feds. They sent G-man Elliot Ness after Big Al. The only way Ness could get Capone was to frame him on a trumped-up income tax rap. Capone was arrested and put on trial. The fix was in. He was convicted and sent to the slammer. But even though Capone lost the battle, he won the war. Prohibition was repealed and booze became legal again.

So the next time you're at a ball game knocking back a cold beer, or having a shot at your favorite tavern, say thanks to Al Capone, the American hero who made it all possible.

THE UNTOUCHABLES

as told by John Gotti

It's a Wonderful LIFE

as told by Donald Trump

George Baily inherited a small building-and-loan business from his father. He lent money for mortgages. When people couldn't make their payments he told them not to worry about it. What a schmuck! He should have foreclosed and kicked them out! He could have gotten a tax abatement and built condos, a high-rise office complex, and a gambling casino. He just didn't understand the art of the deal.

One day while checking George's books, the bank examiners found an $8,000 discrepancy. George's drunken uncle had lost the money on the way to the bank. Unless it was replaced, George faced criminal charges. I can't believe the guy didn't have eight grand to his name! Hell, I gave more than that to Ed Koch's re-election fund—and I bate Ed Koch!

George panicked and decided to kill himself. But he was stopped by an old guy claiming to be an angel. George said he wished he'd never been born. So the angel took George into the past to prove that his life had been meaningful. Ha! In my opinion, George was a total loser! He never made a million-dollar deal, he never had his picture on a magazine cover, and he never shook hands with Mike Tyson or Don King.

Anyway, George realized his life was okay and he returned to his family. His friends took up a collection to replace the money. George resumed his useless job at the building and loan company, barely scraping out an existence. This is a wonderful life? Come on!

TOLD BY FAMOUS PEOPLE

WRITER: LOU SILVERSTONE

RAMBO

as told by Ronald Reagan

Rambo was a brave, patriotic soldier. He was the kind of American that makes me proud to be Commander-in-Chief. Rambo reminds me of another great hero, Duke Wayne, who, as we all know, practically won World War II singlehandedly. Rambo had Duke's brand of determination—he wouldn't let anyone or anything stand in his way.

Well, we had photographic proof that some Americans were still being held in Viet Nam. We told Rambo to go in and bring them out. We dropped him by parachute into enemy territory. Let me tell you, that jungle was crawling with heavily armed Vietnamese soldiers and their so-called Russian "advisers." Rambo went into action and those Commies never knew what hit them. Rambo accomplished his mission and brought our boys back home.

I wish that Ollie North and the guys at the National Security Council had asked me how to gain the release of our hostages in Iran. I would have told them to forget about that arms-for-hostages deal. Just send in Rambo! He'll get the job done. Unfortunately, they never discussed their plans with me—at least I don't think they did, I really can't remember...

Willie Loman was a salesman, and, like politicians, salesmen are forced to spend a great deal of time on the road, away from their loved ones. It's a lonely life, living out of a suitcase, eating in restaurants, and sleeping in strange hotels. And salesmen, just like politicians and ball players, are only human.

To relieve the loneliness, Willie had an occasional, harmless date. Just some dinner and friendly conversation. Willie was enjoying one of these innocent encounters with a young woman when his son, Biff, made a surprise visit. Biff didn't want to hear Willie's explanation. Like the media, he assumed that Willie was cheating on his wife. Biff never forgave his father, and he never let his father forget it. But Willie's wife knew better. She trusted him and remained loyal.

At this time we had a president who was void of any new ideas. He felt that unemployment was the only way to fight inflation. Thousands of people lost their jobs, including Willie. Willie was desperate. He committed suicide so that his wife would get his life insurance money.

Willie's tragic tale didn't get any coverage from the media. I guess they were too busy hiding in the bushes stalking some presidential candidate.

A MAD PEEK BEHIND THE SCENES AT A COMEDY CLUB

ARTIST: SAM VIVIANO

WRITER: LOU SILVERSTONE

How did you like my act tonight? I wrote all the material myself.

Sure, he watched TV and wrote down everything Letterman said, word for word!

I can't figure you out. Everytime a comedian does something gross like burping or using foul language, you applaud. I do the same thing and you say I'm a disgusting pig!

Did you see my set tonight? Man, I was on a roll, one gag after another! I bet I told ten gags a minute!

Yeah, that's because you weren't interrupted by laughter!

The funniest thing in this place is calling these "frisbees with legs" a "table for four"!

Not so loud, the boss doesn't like the busboys being funnier than the comedians!

If that guy's a comedian he must be pretty desperate, writing down the lousy jokes in this joint.

We really have a young crowd tonight! The only things over 21 years old in here are the jokes!

I guess these kids like to laugh!

No, they like to drink! We're not too tough when it comes to checking I.D.s!

ONE WAY

I'll tell ya, with all the new comedy clubs, cable stations and TV specials, there's a real shortage of comic talent.

I'll say! Last week, the microphone broke, the electrician came out to fix it and he was such a hit, this week he's playing Atlantic City!

Hoo! That last comedian was so funny I almost wet my pants!

You might as well, did you see the line for the john?!

Start spreading a rumor that Eddie Murphy is going to make a surprise visit tomorrow night!

We did that last week! How many times do you think our customers will fall for that Eddie Murphy garbage?

All right this time make it Robin Williams!

Gee, I don't know which show to do, Letterman or Carson!

Wow! You got offers from Carson and Letterman?

No, I only have an hour left on my tape and I don't know which show I should set my VCR for!

Geez, $15 to get in, two drink minimum — this is costing us $40! That's about $10 a laugh!

We could have rented a Richard Pryor video, got a six pack and saved ourselves $30!

We're raising the admission from $10 to $15 tonight. I just found out one of our comics was on prime time TV last week and I figure that means people will gladly pay an extra five bucks to see him!

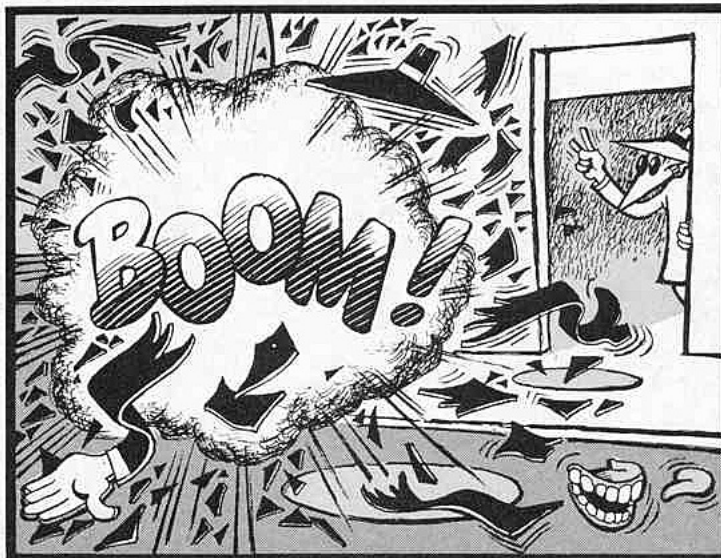

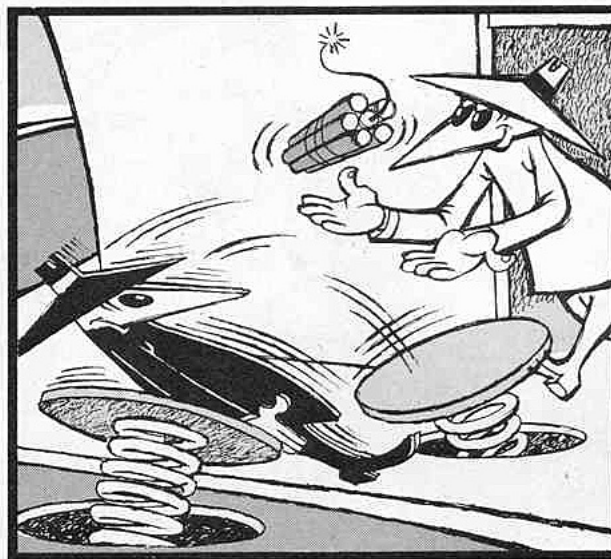

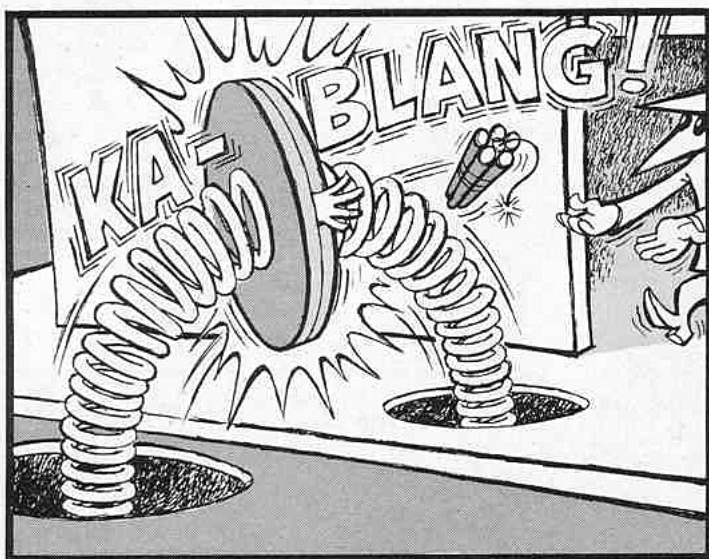

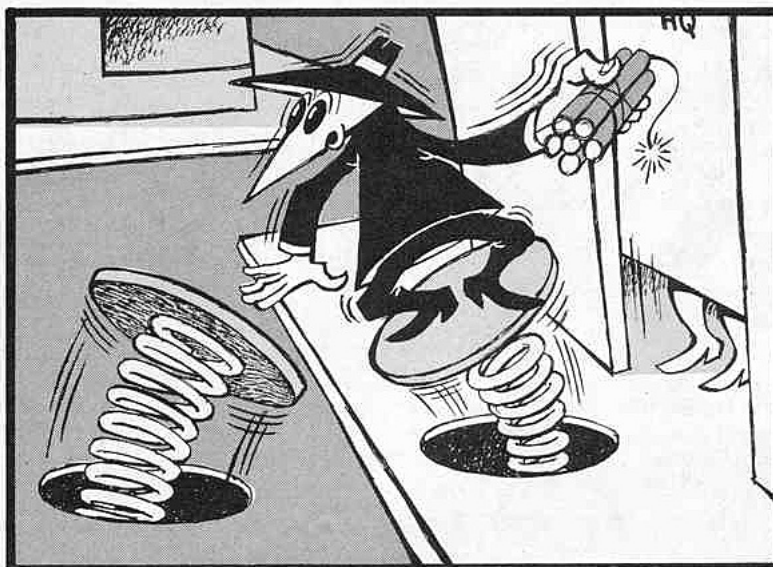

What show was he on?

The Six O'clock News! He was a witness to a car crash!

MISSION

SPY VS SPY

Ever since the first modern Olympics were held in Athens in 1896,* politics has intruded into what is supposed to be a celebration of individual athletic achievement. What do we at MAD think can be done about this travesty? NOTHING! C'mon, Olympic Organizing Committee, get off your high horse! It's time to admit there's not a thing you can do to keep politics out of the Games! You might as well welcome it in with open arms by introducing these...

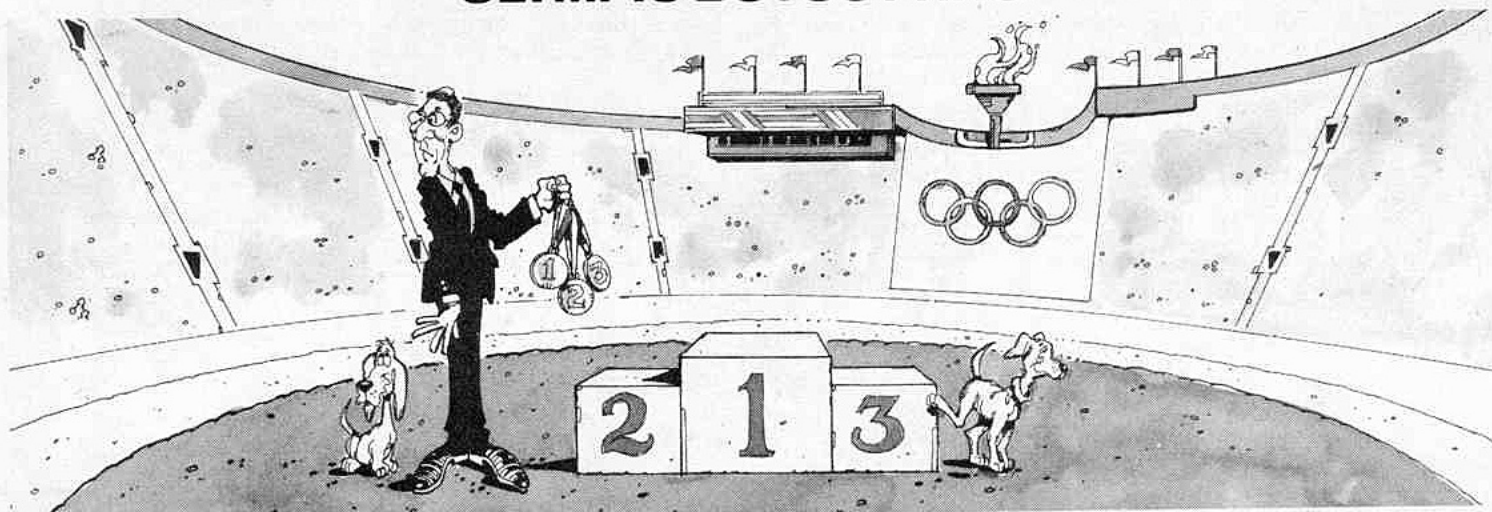

POLITICALLY INSPIRED OLYMPIC EVENTS

ARTIST: BOB JONES

WRITER: MIKE SNIDER

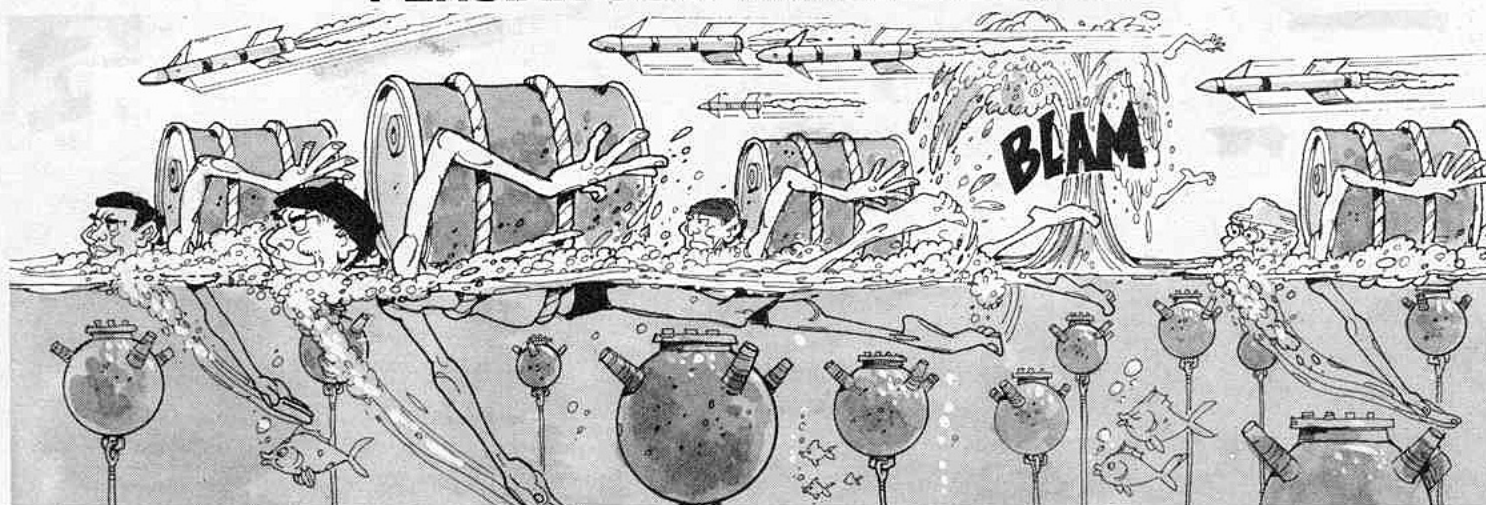

OLYMPIC BOYCOTTING

Since "not showing up" has become such a popular feature of the Games (The U.S. in '80, the Soviets in '84)—why not turn it into an event? Judges will award points for: Best-sounding excuse for staying away; number of other countries the boycotting nation pressures into staying away; and most effective silencing of whiny athletes who think sports and politics don't mix. A money-saving event, since none of the winners will be present to get their medals!

PERSIAN GULF MINE-DODGING

In this event, competing teams of international swimmers strap 50-gallon oil drums to their backs and swim through the mine-infested waters of the Strait of Hormuz. Points are awarded for speed, style and total number of Silkworm missiles avoided.

CROSS-COUNTRY INVADING

A full slate of international tensions, animosities and border squabbles makes this the perfect year to inaugurate this event! The Soviet Union's history of attacks on Poland, Afghanistan and Hungary establish it as the team to beat, but don't count out Iran or Iraq, either! Local favorite North Korea (reportedly itching for a rematch with host country South Korea) could provide spectators with more action and excitement than the Games have seen in years!

EMBASSY GATE HIGH HURDLES

Teams of fully armed Middle-Eastern terrorists (or, as they prefer to be called, "students") must successfully leap over security barriers, gates and fences in order to storm the nearest

U.S. Embassy. Bonus points will be awarded for viciousness of anti-American chants, amount of mindless property destruction and manipulation of television news camera crews covering them.

DEPOSED DICTATOR'S TRIATHLON

Prospective competitors (chosen by uprising or revolt) must finish all three events alive and out of prison. Event #1: Last-minute looting of national treasury. Event #2: Escaping angry mobs storming palace. Event #3: Finding a new home in a country that's not too picky about who it lets in. Current record holders include: Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier (making fastest getaway) and Ferdinand Marcos (most money and gold stolen; best home-in-exile; goofiest wife).

MOVING-DEMONSTRATOR TARGET SHOOTING

Many countries maintain regiments of marksmen to deal with troublemakers who challenge that government's "right" to lie, steal or oppress. Here is a chance for these keepers-of-order to "show their stuff" in open competition. The Olympic Committee can sanction events for the three different styles of protester-shooting: Northern Ireland Style (pressurized water cannon) Republic of South Africa Style (live rifle ammo) Warsaw Pact Style (SS-20 medium range missiles).

SYNCHRONIZED SPY-SWAPPING

How's this for a sport? It's three a.m. on a deserted bridge linking East and West Germany. Two opposing teams must get to the middle of the bridge, simultaneously trade a captured enemy agent for one of their own and then escape unharmed. Okay, so it's not that exciting, but it sure beats the hell out of other lame junk like "Shot-putting" and the "Triple Jump"!

10,000-KILOMETER SECRET ARMS SHIPMENT RELAY

Inspired by the infamous Iran/Contra affair, this relay calls on competitors to send large shipments of lethal weapons to their favorite "Outlaw Nation" using the most complicated and confusing route possible. Olympic judges may choose to use the official Ollie North rules: Participants MAY NOT: 1) Obey any laws; 2) Get permission from any superiors; 3) Tell the truth.

the SAGA

It was many and many a year ago,
In the land of the brave and the free,
That a firm did arise and soon grew to great size,
And its name was AT&T;
But its foes cried, "Unfair! You can't hog the whole share!
"A monopoly's bad as can be!"
And they fought very tough and in time, sure enough,
They were breaking up AT&T.

Thus began a great war like no battle before,
With a dozen firms running amok,
You've got Sprint, MCI, sev'ral more shooting high
For a slice of the long-distance buck,
And they snow you with ads pushing trendy, new fads,
Like no hustle you ever did see,
Till you fall for their pitch and you're making the switch,
Waving bye-bye to AT&T.

Soon you're making a call to a guy in St. Paul,
When you're hearing a horrible screech,
So you dial him once more and are reaching a store
Selling kitchen supplies in Palm Beach,
So you're trying again and are getting through when
You discover your line has gone dead,
And you're fit to be tied, which is when you decide
That you'll write him a letter instead.

of AT&T

ARTIST: JACK DAVIS WRITER: FRANK JACOBS

Once a month you get ill from a 14-page bill
Full of charges you can't comprehend,
Plus a plan ultra-new, bringing savings to you
Just so long as more money you spend;
Everywhere that you look, there's more gobbledygook
As they tout Fiber Optics and such,
And you're cursing your luck and you feel like a schmuck
While your dollars they reach out and clutch.

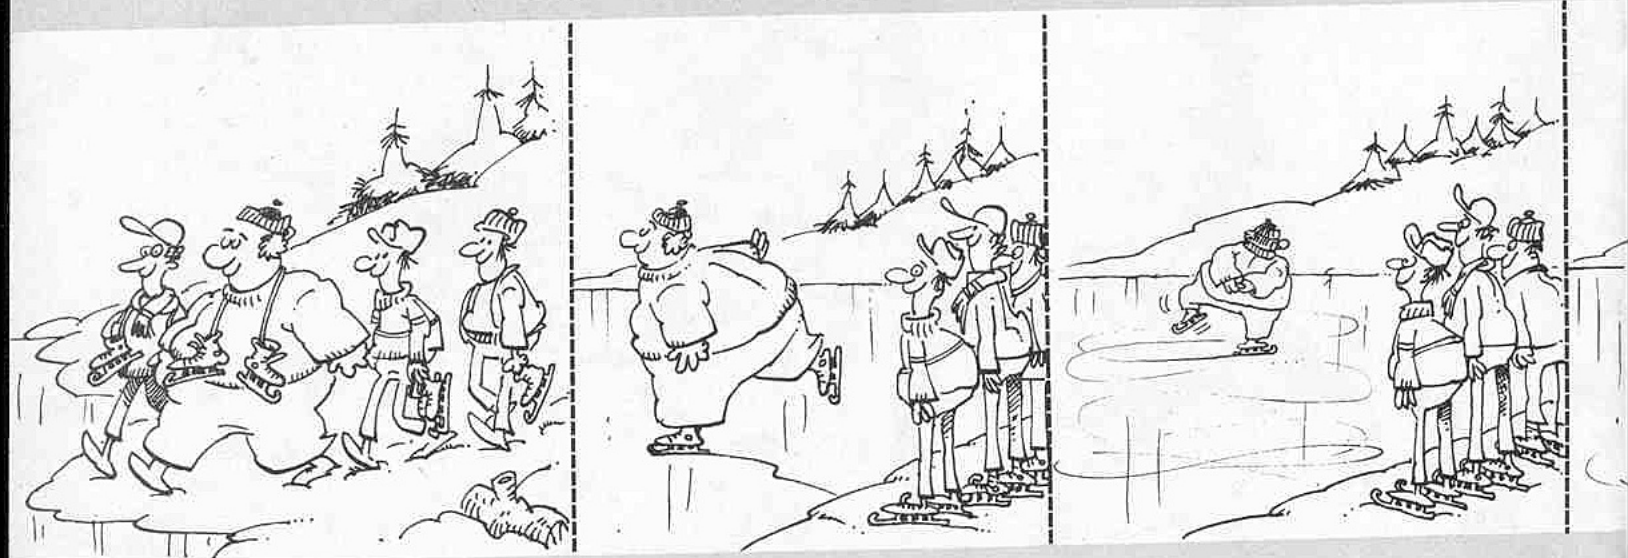

Yes, they're making a haul when a Talk Line you call,
And you're ripped off at two bucks a pop;
Check the bundle you've blown for that self-destruct phone
You bought "cheap" in some ding-a-ling shop;
See that pile on the floor full of phone-books galore
That not even a Pack Rat would save;
When you're done, put your ear to the ground and you'll hear
Mr. Bell turning 'round in his grave.

Now we're told all the time, it's a terrible crime
When some giant monopoly rules;
"Competition's the way," the economists say,
Which is what we are taught in our schools;
But from seeing the mess screwing up the U.S.,
Any imbecile plainly can see
Life was better back then in those ancient days when We were screwed just by A T & T!

We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

ARTIST: GERRY GERSTEN

For Ultra-Conservatives

For Ultra-Liberals

We the do-gooders of the United States, firmly dedicated to help everyone whether they want it or not, foster fair play for misunderstood criminals and other minorities, appeal to the public guilt, put down and scoff at anti-gun control fanatics and pro-death penalty freaks, identify our red-necked political foes as the neo-fascist know-nothings they are, promote vast social programs which cost billions to give us a vote-getting, nice guy image, endorse the right of anyone to do anything in the name of liberty, and denounce the right-wingers for their failure to balance the budget, hereby create and absolutely refuse to compromise on this New-Age, permissive Constitution for the United States of America.

Because you have me trapped?

No, because running at your age, you'll have a stroke!

If Colonel Brooktrout has been captured, then I gotta go in and save him!

But what about all your vows of non-violence, Rambull?

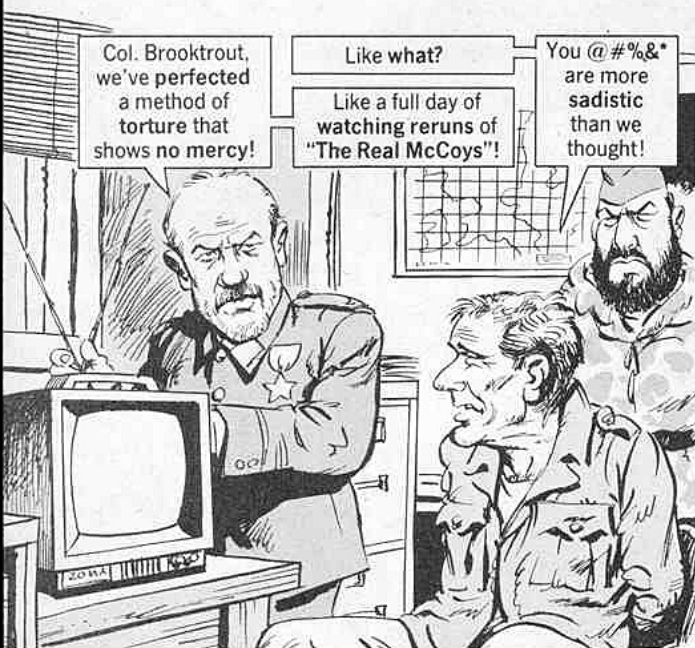

Forget 'em! Those Russians are the disease and I'm the cure!

You'll have to get a new "catch phrase"! You used that one before!

How 'bout "Yo, Adrian!" You used that one too, big guy!

"Eye of the tiger"? "I'll make them an offer they can't refuse"? "I coulda been a contenduh"? "E.T., call home"?

Frankly, my dear Rambull, I don't give a damn!

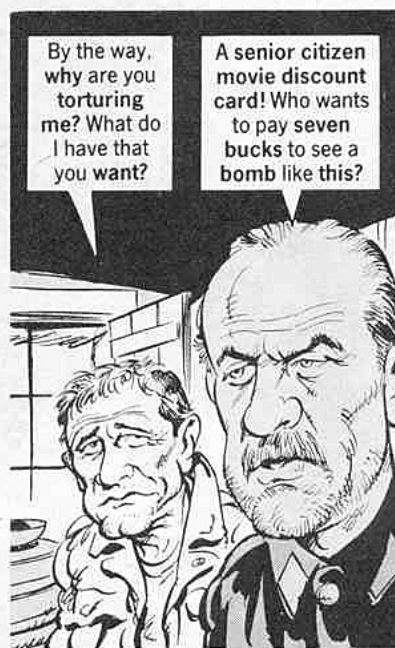

Col. Brooktrout, we've perfected a method of torture that shows no mercy!

That's not what he's doing, idiot! He's signaling that there will be a "Rambull IV"! Please, God, have mercy on us!

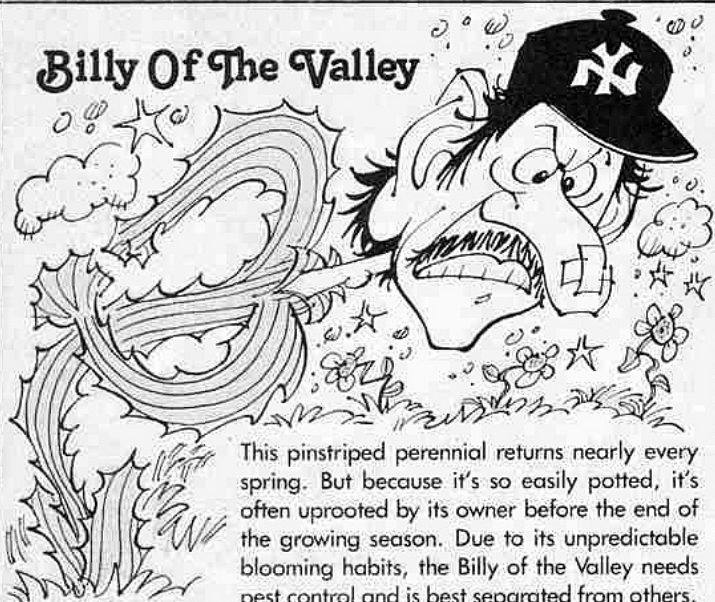

THE EXQUISITE EXECUTION EXPERIMENT

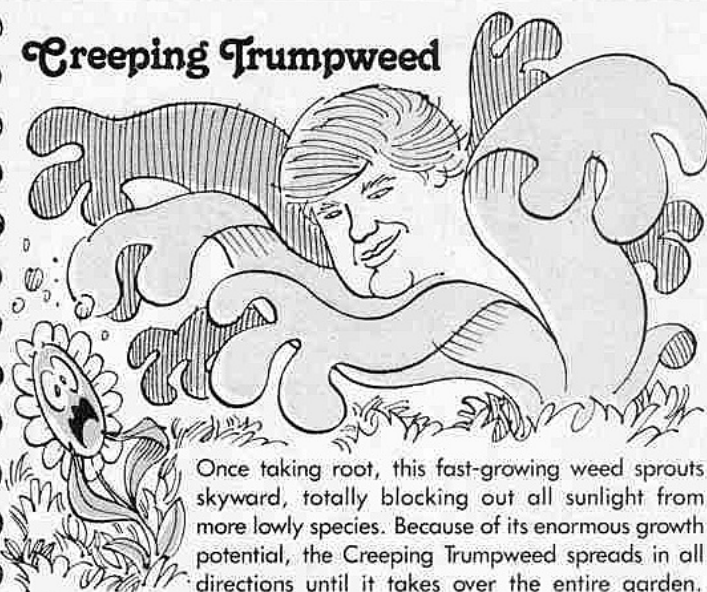

You may not know that many species of flowers, such as the magnolia, dahlia and poinsettia, were named after real people. You also may not know there are some new flowers named after celebrities of today. You'll find them all here in...

Billy Of The Valley

This pinstriped perennial returns nearly every spring. But because it's so easily potted, it's often uprooted by its owner before the end of the growing season. Due to its unpredictable blooming habits, the Billy of the Valley needs pest control and is best separated from others.

Creeping Trumpweed

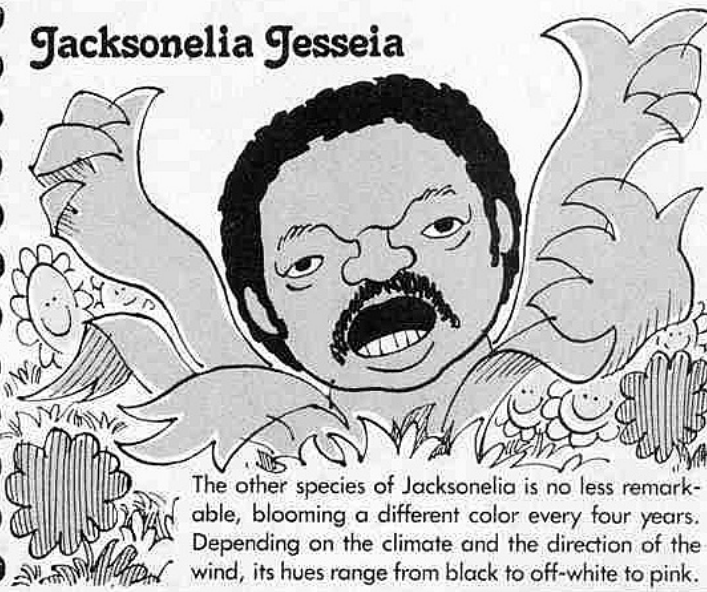

Once taking root, this fast-growing weed sprouts skyward, totally blocking out all sunlight from more lowly species. Because of its enormous growth potential, the Creeping Trumpweed spreads in all directions until it takes over the entire garden.

Jacksonelia Michaelis

This species of Jacksonelia is a peculiar hybrid that blooms a lighter shade each season. Due to years of excessive pruning and cross-breeding, it is feared this species will soon fade out completely.

Jacksonelia Jesseia

The other species of Jacksonelia is no less remarkable, blooming a different color every four years. Depending on the climate and the direction of the wind, its hues range from black to off-white to pink.

Vannaninia

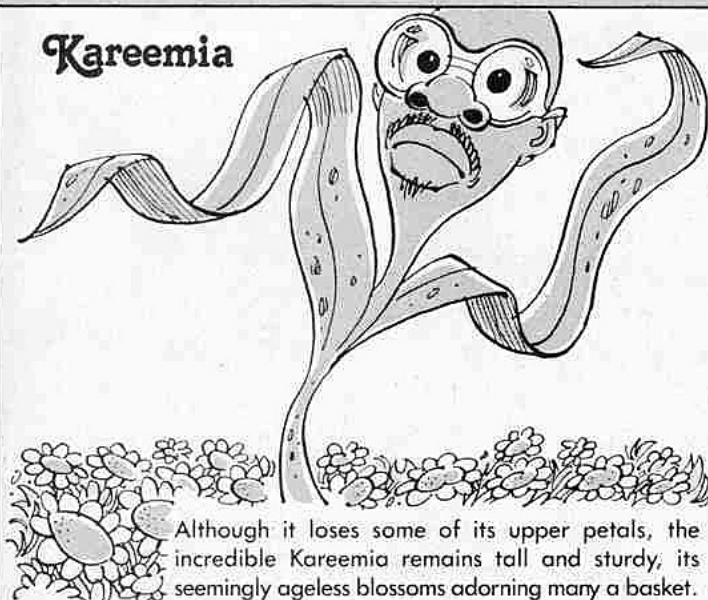

The Vannaninia springs up overnight, producing one big, showy blossom. However, there is considerable concern that its roots may be too shallow to withstand another season. In fact, many plant experts are amazed the Vannaninia has lasted even this long.

Bleeding Hart

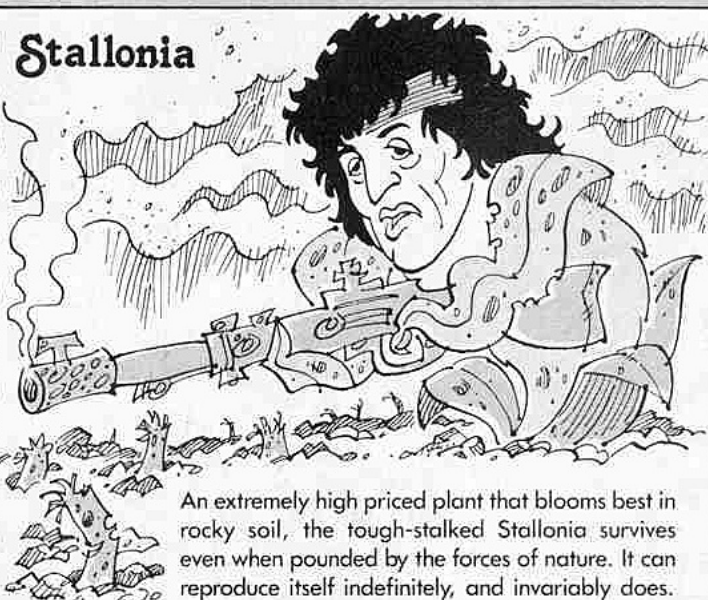

Though weakened by a wavering stem, the Bleeding Hart produces new buds yearly, managing to plant its seed in most any bed. But despite attempts to turn over a new leaf, its fragrance remains unappealing. As with the Bakkeria and Swaggartia, its decaying petals make for excellent fertilizer.

Kareemia

Although it loses some of its upper petals, the incredible Kareemia remains tall and sturdy, its seemingly ageless blossoms adorning many a basket.

Stallonia

An extremely high priced plant that blooms best in rocky soil, the tough-stalked Stallonia survives even when pounded by the forces of nature. It can reproduce itself indefinitely, and invariably does.
